About REACH:

REACH Georgia was launched on February 6, 2012 at Georgia Institute of Technology with the announcement of AT&T being REACH's first corporate partner with a donation of $250,000.

The REACH Georgia Scholarship “rewards students for self-accountability, promotes parent involvement and provides motivation and support; all factors that we know are critical in student educational achievement,” said Governor Nathan Deal at the launch of the program.

In a two-year pilot, REACH Georgia added five school systems—Rabun, Douglas, Dodge, Quitman and Bulloch Counties—committed 35 students as REACH Scholars and invested $350,000 to student scholarships. Today, REACH serves 154 school systems across Georgia and nearly 2,400 Scholars, committing over $24 million in scholarships.

For the 2020-2021 academic year, will REACH enroll up to 10 new school systems and roughly 600 new Scholars. REACH's goal is to have all 180 school systems become REACH participating school systems and serve over 3,000 Scholars.
